FreeRange Productions Right Honourable Member by Tobias Wright

Fast, satirical and absurd, Right Honourable Member is a new play by Tobias Wright, exploring politics, education and the meaning of reputation

Connie, representative of her prestigious British boarding school, has just given the most important speech of her life at an international model government debate... and it all went terribly wrong. She has provoked derision from her fellow delegates and, with her reputation dented, now dreads her forthcoming university interviews. With this in mind, she returns to her hotel room to seek solace in the mini-bar, BBC World News and a male prostitute.

Right Honourable Member launches the professional careers of young actors Matthew Hopkinson (who can also be seen in Montmorency) and Emily Spetch (also performing in The Three Faces of Doctor Crippen).

Tobias Wright has previously worked with Old Vic New Voices, and is one of the freshest and most exciting young playwrights on the circuit.

This is FreeRange Productions' debut in Edinburgh, following sell-out performances around the South East. They are the next generation of practitioners, shaping the future of theatre and creating unforgettable performances. Featuring a cast ranging from experienced drama school graduates to younger hopefuls, this is the freshest company on the circuit, with three headline shows at C venues.

'They may be young but FreeRange perform with an intensity many mature casts would struggle to manage... It would be easy to dismiss them as naive or amateurish, but to do so would be vastly wrong.'
